ESL to structure homework and has disciplinary effect on attendance” as students can access their schoolwork through a medium they feel familiar with and get better prepared for school while teachers can easily supervise student work and offer them immediate feedback. Furthermore, according to the same report, ESL is encouraged by the fact that teachers spend “too much time on technology development” instead of focusing on and meeting student needs. (3)

Using a LMS that is widely accepted as effective, robust, and secure while at the same time it is based on open-source software and supported by a widespread, global community can help save time on technology development while at the same time teachers and students can reap the benefits of using a personalised learning environment. Moodle is such a learning platform that offers all of the above and more. It is:

- used by more than 65 million people on all levels of education and entrepreneurial context around the world
- free and simple to use
- under continual review and improvement
- available in a wide variety of languages
- customisable to suit your needs
- flexible and expandable
- backed by a strong and helpful community
- extensively documented

Most importantly, if you decide to incorporate Moodle in your teaching practice, instead of resorting to a variety of easily available Web 2.0 resources on the internet, you get to keep your students’ data in your own hands. You don’t share it with “free” services of dubious origin and with vaguely-worded data processing agreements.

The visual guidebook you have in your hands will hopefully allow you to scratch the surface of Moodle. It is meant to be used in the context of a 15-hour workshop, together with a list of tasks to be completed with the help of the facilitator in charge but you can surely benefit if you follow the instructions with the help of the prompts and if you are not afraid to use the extensive help that is available on all Moodle websites.

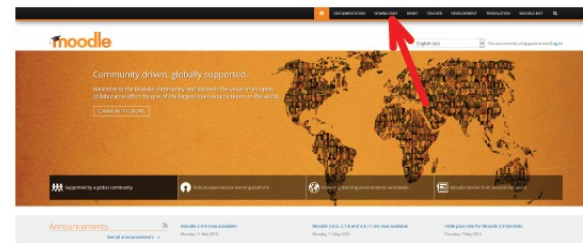

In any case, too much theory and not enough understanding is not probably the way to approach any LMS. So, keep calm and take the plunge into Moodle.

For Moodle 2.9, there are two buttons: 'Download ZIP' and 'Download Tgz'. A red arrow points to the 'Download ZIP' button. Below the buttons, there is a table with columns for 'Version', 'Information', 'ZIP', and 'TGZ'. The 'Information' column for Moodle 2.9 includes links for 'Download ZIP', 'Download Tgz', 'Help', 'FAQ', 'Release notes', 'Bug fixes', 'Security issues', and 'Language packs'. The 'ZIP' and 'TGZ' columns contain buttons for 'Download ZIP' and 'Download Tgz' respectively.

Using cPanel to Set up Moodle

1 Go to your website's cPanel home page and click on File Manager.

2 Select Web Root to go to your website's root folder and click Go.

The screenshot shows the cPanel Directory Selection dialog. It asks the user to 'Select the directory that you wish to open:'. There are four radio button options: 'Home Directory', 'Web Root (public_html/www)', 'Public FTP Root (public_ftp)', and 'Document Root for:'. A red arrow points to the 'Web Root (public_html/www)' option. Below the options, there is a 'Go' button and a checkbox for 'Show Hidden Files (dotfiles)'. There is also a note: 'Skip this question, and always open this directory in the future when I choose to open "File Manager".'
